REALTIST HISTORY

The National Association of Real Estate Brokers, Inc. (NAREB), is the oldest and largest African-American trade association in America. NAREB was founded in 1947 on a philosophy that, even today, is a beacon of excellence forever guiding and preparing its membership to meet the challenges of each new tomorrow.

Members of the NAREB organization are referred to as “REALTIST”. Although, comprised primarily of African-Americans, the REALTIST organization notwithstanding, is an integrated entity open to qualified practitioners of all races who are interested in achieving the ideals of the REALTIST goal of “Democracy in Housing”. REALTIST have made substantial contributions to the cause of democracy by working to provide housing for all without limitations or restrictions. They remain true to the dual mission of serving the underserved and developing creative and effective methods of rendering such services. In this respect, REALTIST have become the voice and conscience of the proponents of equal housing opportunities for all citizens. This involves working on civic programs and in the political arena; as well as in the business world. All of these facets are part of the REALTIST program throughout the nation.

There are many brokers, salespersons and affiliated organizations throughout the nation whose social consciousness and philosophies are in consonance with those espoused by the REALTIST organization in their quest for profitable real estate business predicted upon democratic ideals and principals. All such persons and firms are invited to become a part of the REALTIST organization.

NAREB will continue to pave the way for all citizens to be decently housed and make the cities and states of this nation even better places in which to live.
